Rotary International Pride of Workmanship Awards

The Rotary Club of Thornleigh held its Pride of Workmanship Awards on Wednesday evening. These awards aim to acknowledge hard working employees of local businesses.

During the presentation, two members of All Protection Tinting's team, Gary Thurbon and Barry Dilworth, were recognised for their skills and dedication.

Barry and Gary work together to schedule installation teams, a core element of All Protection Tinting's operation. This position requires quick thinking, organisation and excellent customer service skills.

Company director Alison Newham is delighted that these two hard working individuals have received these awards. "It is excellent that the Rotary offers such recognition to local individuals. Scheduling is a demanding job; both Gary and Barry work hard and deserve this award."

All Protection is getting used to awards ceremonies, only last month their apprentice signwriter, Tracey-Lee Googh received a bronze award at the Australia Sign and Graphics Awards.
